The English Language

The English language can be regarded as the lingua franca among many nations of the world. It is therefore very important to learn this language in order to acquire the best bilingual level, since the higher the level, the better the chances of getting a good job in any professional career that you may have chosen. It is therefore of the highest interest to start to study as soon as possible as time can play in your favor; although that doesn't mean that if you are a middle aged adult it is too late for you to study a language. All depends on your power of will; remember that saying: where there is a will, there is a way.

Today, and thanks to the Internet and many other phone appliances, studying English or any other language is not a nightmare. Now there is a new system to teach English through mobile telephony; that is, you telephone your teacher of English to start the class. Of course, this system must be complemented with a study program with files containing all the information related to it, as well as all the grammar elements concerning the level in which the student is. On the other hand, though, this on-the-phone system is only for students with an intermediate-to-advanced level of English, since beginners need face-to-face lessons because teachers can then solve problems asked by students right on the spot.

And finally, I can only add that if anyone of you wants to have English classes on the phone, send me an email to the address shown at the end of this text and you'll receive from me a sample of a "conversation script" containing phrasal verbs and English expressions from which a conversation scenario may be developed. The country in which on-the-phone classes can be received and offered is Spain as roaming prices are unacceptable.
